$1,000 NEEDED TO SEND SEA CADETS TO EUROPE

LAC LA BICHE.—Recently a meeting of all the organized societies of Lac la Biche, namely the Canadian Legion, the Board of Trade, the Lions' Club, the Women's Institute, the Ladies of St. Catherine's Parish, and representatives of the Town Council, was held in the Town Hall to consider a fitting and proper token of appreciation, and to render tangible and financial assistance to the local Sea Cadet Corps.

These cadets have, for the past eight years, brought favorable comment and publicity from all over the Dominion, and have made Lac la Biche known far and wide. This corps, which is the farthest north in Canada, has passed many boys through its ranks. There is hardly a family in town which has not, at one time or another, had one of its boys in the Cadets.

The next effort of the Corps will give the name of Lac la Biche an international significance. On July 20, this year, just a few days from now, the Canadian Pacific Company's steamship, "The Empress of Canada," will sail from Montreal. On it will be the commanding officer of the Lac la Biche Sea Cadets, Rev. Father J. E. McGrane, and four of the cadets, namely, Jackie Wolstenholme, Harold Klein, Romeo Lebeuf, and Wilfred Woychuk. The cadet's training ship, "Exeter," will also be on board, with these words painted on the stern: "Exeter, Lac la Biche, Alberta, Canada." This local craft, which was actually built here in the home town, will sail the shores and inland waterways of England, and will cross over the English Channel to France. And wherever the Exeter goes, there also goes the name of Lac la Biche.

Because of the greatness of this project, the question of finance naturally arises. Father McGrane is personally contributing over $1000. This sum was saved up over the years, and was to have been used to visit his mother and relatives in the Old Country. But, since the Festival of Britain will be in progress, and the opportunities most favorable for seeing Britain at its best, he conceived the idea that it would be a wonderful and an educational opportunity if some of the sea cadets could take the trip. Accordingly, Father McGrane went to Eastern Canada last winter and interested others in the project. The Navy was talked into providing transportation for the party to Montreal; but the other expenses are very heavy. The Exeter must be taken to provide sleeping accommodation as well as transportation. Arrangements were made to get the boat from Montreal to Liverpool. However, it will cost over $1200 to ship the Exeter from Lac la Biche to Montreal and return. The return fares on the boat cost $1800. Then there will be the harbor dues and many other expenses, so a lot of money will be needed.

The Edmonton Division of the Navy League, on hearing of the project, at once donated $1000. Many others have donated various sums, large and small. Now all that is lacking is about $1000. It is this amount that the above named organizations are helping to raise.

In spite of the fact that a clergyman is at the head of the local Sea Cadets, this corps is really non-denominational. It includes boys of many races and creeds. If you will study the names of the boys picked for this cruise you will notice that the choice would have done justice to the wisdom of Solomon. There are two Catholic boys and two Protestant. Of racial origin, one English, one French, one German, and one Ukrainian.

The benefits which will come to Lac la Biche are easy to see. Much favorable publicity was given to the town last year by the river cruise to Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. It will be much greater this year. The CBC has already contacted the Corps for several broadcasts, one of them on the National Network's "News Round-Up."

Those who wish may leave any contributions with Mr. McCaskill at the Imperial Bank.

Wednesday, July 11, a big dance in the form of a farewell party will be held in the Memorial Hall. Contributions of two dollars or more entitles anyone to admission. Before the dance bingo will be played. The results of this campaign will then be made public. This is an all-out effort of the whole town with every organization taking part.

Fire Destroys Store, House at Egg Lake

EGG LAKE — On June 15 fire destroyed the house and store of Mr. A. L. L'heureux. Mrs. L'heureux was alone at home with her son, Joseph. She was getting dinner ready, when fire started in the warehouse behind the store. It is not known how the fire started, as there was no stove or light in that room, and Mrs. L'heureux had been working in that room a short time before. The only thing they can think about, is that she might have knocked a box of matches down as she left the room. But there is nothing certain. They managed to call a neighbor, Mr. Albert Huppie, who helped them to save some clothes and furniture in the private house, but as the house and the store were all in the same building, they had to hurry. Nothing could be saved in the store. Mr. Louis Lemay happened to pass by and helped too. They managed to save the safe, which was red hot. They were lucky to be able to save the other buildings. The garage suffered some damage, but the other buildings were saved.

Friends and neighbors came as soon as they heard the bad news. Mrs. Edmond Pare took the school teacher and the two L'heureaux girls to her place. Mrs. L'heureux also spent a few days there. The men had to keep watch day and night for two days, because they were afraid for the other buildings. The loss will be partly covered by insurance.

We all sympathize with the L'heureaux family in their misfortune.

Mrs. Annette Desrosiers and daughter, Terry, and Mr. and Mrs. Belzil of St. Paul, came to visit the Pare families, and took Mr. Henry Pare with them to St. Paul for a visit.

Miss Delia Huppie is working at Lac la Biche for her brother, Mr. Eugene Huppie.

Wheat Prices and Bread Prices

The whole milling and baking industry has come in for a round of censure over the recent modest increase of 6 cents per bushel in the price of wheat to the producer.

The industry, apparently, was ready to increase the price of a loaf of bread by one cent, while paying only one-ninth of a cent extra for the wheat that goes into it. Typical of the criticism voiced is the following from the Calgary Albertan:

The 6-cent increase in the price of wheat was followed instantly by announcements of actual or pending increases in the price of flour and bread. The 20-ounce loaf sold in Calgary for 13 cents will probably go up to 14 cents.

We have no particular objection to changes in the price of bread. If real competition exists, it can be assumed the price is competitive and therefore fair.

But let's be careful about how that bread price increase is explained.

The Canadian Wheat Board and the milling industry have a rule of thumb that 4½ bushels of wheat make 196 pounds of flour. And most bakeries find that 100 pounds of flour are needed for 150 pounds of bread or 120 20-ounce loaves. According to our figuring that works out to about 1.1 pounds of wheat for a loaf of bread.

With wheat costing 6 cents a bushel more, that means that 1.1 pounds of wheat cost .11 cents more. It means that the farmer will get one-ninth of a cent more for each loaf of bread. Yet the price will go up a full cent. Who will get the other eight-ninths of a cent?

Some bakers point out that their other costs have gone up too. Other ingredients are more expensive, labor rates are higher.

Assuming that the full cent increase is justified, let the consumer remember that only a ninth of it is due to the increased cost of wheat. Any attempts to explain higher bread prices solely or even largely in terms of higher wheat prices should be branded for what they are—a plain deception.

Fortunately, the dominion government has foreseen this attempted gouging of the public by the baking and milling industries. The government will not charge the extra 6 cents per bushel to the domestic users of wheat. The increased cost will no doubt come as a subsidy from the dominion treasury, but as everyone eats bread, everyone will be paying the extra cost accordingly. And only one-ninth of a cent instead of a full one-cent increase in price, which the baking and milling profiteers would like to charge.

No Chance For Normal Lives

Recognizing that many Americans would sacrifice their country's position of leadership in world affairs for the comfortable isolation that existed before World War I, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, of Canada, recently told the graduates of Northwestern University that they would never know "normal" lives if that meant being without worry about the problems of the rest of the human race.

The Prime Minister asserted that, on the course of the U.S.A., "the fate of all mankind largely depends." As the "dominant factor in the free world," which faces the "most forbidding prospect of more than a hundred years," the great task of statesmanship is to maintain "a balance" between the free and Communist worlds without war.

In the end, declared the speaker, there must be a free world or a world in chains.

Expressing confidence that the United States would not fail to mobilize its moral and material resources to meet the world crisis, just as it did twice before to uphold freedom, our Canadian statesman warned against listening to those who urged striking now against Russia's military power, those who urge that "it is better to go it alone and take the consequences," and those "Communist fellow-travellers who urge other nations to remain neutral in the big-power conflict.

There may be nothing new under the sun but the present generation is seeing it for the first time.

The Lighter Side Of Lawmaking

By T. W. PUE

Last week another session of Parliament closed, and though I haven't read much of Hansard or noticed a great deal of comment about it anywhere, I imagine both Houses had their share of the funny bits, the ridiculous and the absurd. Out of the usually dull and somtimes grim debating comes a bit of laughter and merriment.

R. B. Bennett, as Opposition Leader, could pack members in on both sides of the House of Commons by his ready wit and snappy repartee. But his old antagonist, Mr. King, would frequently end a lively discussion with a simple observation that left no room for reply.

T. W. PUE

HAIR TO COMB

There was the time, for instance, when a Conservative member, balding type, was taking the Liberals to task for high taxes. That was back in 1936, but even at that time Opposition members thought taxes were high. He accused Mr. King of taxing everything that could be taxed, suggesting in derision that the only thing left untaxed was the right to comb one's hair.

Amid howls of laughter, Mr. King replied simply: "The Hon. Member would be very fortunate if he had any hair to comb."

SAILING A BOAT

I told that story to J. E. Matthews, who was Liberal member from Brandon, Manitoba, from 1937 until his death early this year. Mr. Matthews said he could top it with one of his own.

Older readers of this column will remember Hon. H. H. Stevens, who was a Minister in the Bennett Conservative regime, 1930 to 1935. He broke with Bennett and formed his own "Reconstruction" party which in the 1935 election helped assure defeat of the Conservatives. But he was re-elected himself, and in the House shortly after was telling Mr. King how he should sail the ship of state through the then troublous waters of depression, rising Hitlerism and the Ethiopian crisis. In the midst of telling Mr. King he should travel around the country and see how bad conditions were, he was obliged to stop talking when a Liberal back-bencher advised him "Aw, sit down. You scuttled one ship!"

WHEN RUFUS WASN'T THERE

Readers will no doubt be familiar with the parliamentary system of "pairing off". When a member of one party "pairs off" with a member of another party, it is agreed that in case either is unable to be in the house during a vote, his opposite will not vote. This same system holds forth in the U.S. Congress in Washington.

According to George Dixon, columnist in the Chicago Daily News, wonderful memories of one of the greatest bellylaughs ever to disrupt solemn Senate procedure came flooding back when former Senator Rufus Holman, Ore., paid a return visit to the Capitol.

The Republican, Mr. Holman, retired from the Senate in 1945, but his name often comes up in the story of the great guffaw, which probably will be retold as long as there is a person with any sense of humor left in Washington.

Mr. Holman never intended to be funny. But he rendered the Senate almost helpless with hysterical laughter. Here's what happened.

The serious-visaged solon, his pan as solemn as usual, arose to announce he was pairing off in the voting with (the late) Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Mississippi.

Clearing his throat importantly, Mr. Holman proclaimed:

"If Senator Bilbo were here he would vote 'aye'. And if I were here I would vote 'no'.".

The bellows of laughter told him something was wrong, so he got up again.

"What I meant to say," he amended, "was that if Senator Bilbo were here he would vote 'no' and if I were here I would vote 'aye'.".

Then the roof fell in.

Do Cows See Dentist Twice a Year?

Perhaps cows, too, should see their dentist twice a year. If a cow is having trouble digesting her food, or even eating it, her teeth may be at fault. One of the country's leading veterinarians recently pointed out that stockmen and veterinarians should be on the lookout for bovine dental troubles.

One cow refused to eat, and while the vet was checking her throat he sliced his finger on a sharp tooth. When the tooth was repaired the cow went back to her normal eating habits. Cows normally have good teeth for the job at hand, but the animals' teeth should not be ruled out as a source of trouble.

Brawls between servicemen and youths in Edmonton recently pose an alarming symptom in Alberta life. Is Alberta's younger generation destined for such cowardly behavior as that shown above?

SEXY BOOK JACKETS

Dear Sir—Who says sex hasn't got a lot to do with whether a book will be a best-seller? Recently I had a copy of Rosemond Marshall's "Laird's Choice". I removed the jacket and then asked several people if they wanted to read it. Several flipped idly through the pages and murmured, "I don't think I'd enjoy this kind of book." So then I replaced the sexy jacket and went to lunch. When I got back five people were fighting to read the book!

LEGAL AID

Dear Sir—Now that the doctors are getting their own medical insurance plan organized, I suggest the legal profession should do something to contribute to the general good. Why can't they organize some kind of legal aid to people who can't afford legal advice in times of need? Or is the full measure of British justice available only to those able to pay for it?

POOR MAN'S CHANCE

Dear Sir—I was quite angered by that letter I saw in your paper a little while ago running you down. My goodness, everybody knows editors make mistakes because they're only human, too. Just the same, there's no need to talk like that character did. Why, doesn't he know that newspapers are the poor man's university?

CONTROLLING WAGES

Dear Sir—In answer to demands for price control, business and the government is telling us we'd have to have controls on wages as well. That's no doubt intended to discourage the working class who want a stop put to the rising cost of living. All I can say is that you can't control wages unless you control the cost of living. Just the other way around, eh!

HYPO FOR VOTERS

Dear Sir—Everybody knows we would get better government if all the people turned out and voted—that way we'd knock the props from under machine politics. I suggest that each voter be given a small slip of paper, to be signed and deposited in a container after he casts his ballot. Then have a drawing, with substantial prizes donated by Boards of Trade or any civic or business group. This program should increase the vote appreciably.

WHEAT PRICES, POLITICS

Dear Sir—Two weeks ago, the Wheat Board put up the price of wheat six cents, but one week later the domestic six cent boost was suddenly taken off. Who was it put the political pressure on Ottawa to gyp the farmers? Open market wheat as above grades are $2.32. Will some wise guy tell us which of the above is straight price?

BIBLE GOD'S WORD

Dear Sir—If the Bible wasn't all inspired by God, what are we to cut out? Does Rev. Berry have the formula for dissecting the scriptures? II Timothy 3:16 says "All scripture is given by inspiration of God." The "Word of the Lord," "The Lord Said" and similar expressions are to be noted over 2,000 times in the Bible. If after reading these portions he still thinks the Bible is false, Mr. Berry should get a job selling soap—if he can!

Waskatenau. BELIEVER.

Dear Sir—I, too, read W. G. Berrys' denunciation of the Bible. Coming from a professed minister of the Gospel, this is somewhat surprising, although it illustrates very well the popular attitude toward the Old Book. In the days of our fathers it was reverenced as the Word of God, and believed to be divinely inspired and authoritative. Now we are told that it is a book of Oriental folklore, written thousands of years ago when practically nothing was known of science, and that it therefore contains many scientific inaccuracies. It is my conviction that if the Bible is either scientifically or historically inaccurate, it no longer bears the imprint of a revelation from God, and thus ceases to be an authority in matters of religion. The Bible cannot be religiously beneficial and scientifically false.

Toronto. L. A. WILCOX.

VIGOR IN VEGETABLES

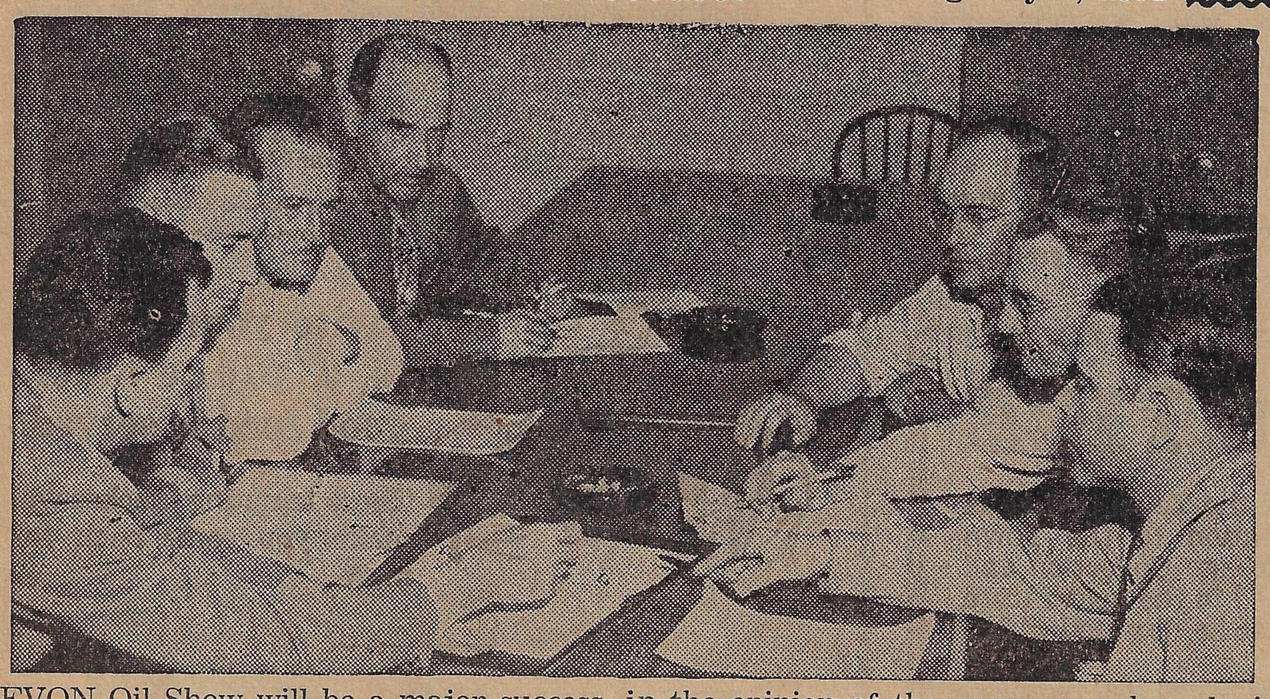

Dear Sir—Someone who was complaining about the high cost of living said they needed a lot of meat to keep strong. Well, I clean my eight rooms every day and do hard physical work besides. And I don't need meat to carry on my strenuous activities. It's plain murder to be a meat-eater. No animal bodies enter mine. I am small and hard as a nail, and hope to live longer than G. B. Shaw.

Farming Big Business For Alberta Man; Costs Him $2000 Daily To Plant Crop

CALGARY — (BUP) — Farming is big business for O. B. Lassiter, who estimates he spent about $2,000 a day this spring to put in the crop on his farm 60 miles east of here.

Just how big a business Lassiter makes of tilling the soil is shown by a few figures on his farming operationss:

Acreage: 4,500.
Initial expenditure: $50,000.
Men: About 50.
Equipment: Seven caterpillar diessels, seven tractors.

Lassiter is a "dry-land farmer" who learned the tricks of the trade in California before he came to Alberta in 1917. He operates on soil that 30 years ago drove out hundreds of homesteaders who could not make a go of it.

The "super farmer" is seeding nearly seven square miles, most of it virgin soil. His methods may be unorthodox, but they are scientific.

Lassiter figures that the cost of operating on the rolling land, part of the old Sunshine Ranch, is 50 per cent higher than if it were level and without rocks. More than $1 an acre is spent on rock removal.

He said it all is a question of methods, and admitted that farming in the dry area is a risky one. He said he felt, however, that proper methods and implements could overcome the lack of moisture.

Early farmers who ventured into the area failed because of their methods and because they farmed on too small an acreage, he believes.

Lassiter's method is best explained by reviewing the manner in which he prepared the land and planted this year's crop.

The land was broken with 39-foot Graham-Hoeme three-section plows last fall an dhooked from five different directions, then left to catch moisture during the winter.

Large crews of rock pickers then went to work and 16-foot double offset discs with double harrows behind broke the clods before seeding started with a new-type seed drill. Up to three double harrowings were carried out after seeding.

Lassiter said he used the new Noble shoe-type press drill to "get the seed where it belongs in the firm, moist and clear seed bed." The seed is placed three inches down to take advantage of subsurface moisture through capillary action.

The machine is being used for the first time in Alberta outside the testing ground of inventor C. S. Noble of Nobleford, Alta. It works on the principle of the old-fashioned shoe drill by dropping the seed deep in the ground through pipes.

The machine was planned as a follow-up to the Noble blade which cuts weed roots and loosens the top soil without disturbing the trash that keeps dry soil from drifting.

Banft Laying Plans To Celebrate Indian Days

Indian tom-toms will beat out a welcome message from the lodges of the Stonys to thousands of visitors at the annual Indian Days celebration which will be held at Banff July 19 to July 22.

For the 62nd consecutive year, the Stonys, noted hunters of the mountain area, will leave their reservation 40 miles east of Banff for the overland trek to the mountain resort, and for four days they will entertain the visitors with displays of horsemanship, parades, cowboy contests, and horse races.

NATIVE CONCERTS

In the evenings, the Indians will present native concerts in the special outdoor auditorium at the Banff Springs Hotel. Dressed in their native beaded and buckskin outfits, men, women and children will take part in the program. They will sing their tribal dances, and as a grand wind-up every evening, they will invite their white friends to participate with them in the Owl Dance.

A lot of water has cascaded over Bow Falls since Bearspaw led his Stonys into Banff for the first Indian Days celebration back in 1889. Banff was but a hamlet then, and Calgarians who attended the unique event travelled from Calgary by train, which in those days was an adventure in itself.

Now, automobiles, trains, and airplanes bring visitors to Banff from all parts of the world for the four-day all-Indian celebration, which is rapidly becoming a "must" during the Canadian holiday season.

The Stampede and Rodeo contests, which is one of the features of the celebration, are held in the Buffalo Park, a mile east of the centre of the town. Here an Indian village blossoms almost overnight. The Stonys bring out their best ceremonial teepees and they are set up in a long line along the main 'street' of the village. A special section of the camp is set aside for visiting Indians, Sarcees from Calgary, Blackfoot from Gleichen, Bloods from Cardston, Crees from Hobbema, and northern Stonys from Nordegg.

When all the visitors have been welcomed, more than 100 teepees will have been erected in the village, and this colorful sight attracts scores of amateur photographers who visit the camp at all hours looking for "shots" that are different.

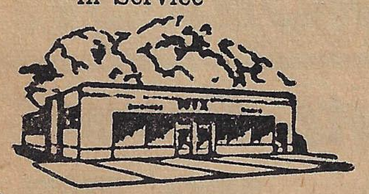

SAYS RIEL MISJUDGED

CALGARY, Alta. — (BUP)—Louis Riel, hanged for his leadership of the rebellion which jolted Western Canada in the late 19th century, has been described as a gentle, humane and kindly man mistreated by history.

Historian Frank W. Anderson of Calgary said Riel was not a little dictator who ran roughshod over the early west. Anderson said Riel could be described as the Father of Western Canada.

Riel took "honesty in public affairs" as his motto, Anderson says, and once turned down a $4,000,000 United States bribe rather betray Britain.

NO. 50-AW AUTOMATIC WIRE-TYING BALER

The McCormick No. 50-AW Baler is heavy-duty machine built to meet the needs of the custom baler. It is built like the No. 50-T baler except that it ties with wire. Accordingly, the 50-AW produces dense, well-packed and firmly tied bales.

The two heavy-duty wire twisters make a firm, three twist tie and cut the wire only once between bales. No bits of waste wire are left in the bales or fields to be picked up by livestock.

LETTER TO LOUISA

Girl Wrong In Asking Boy to Miss College

Dear Louisa: I am a high school girl and very much in love with a boy of my own age.

I would like to get married but this boy I am going with is planning to go to college and he will have to work to help pay his way.

I have tried to persuade him to take a job when he finishes school so we won't have to wait four years.

Don't you think that he would do this if he really loved me?

SEVENTEEN.

Answer:

You are very foolish to try to persuade this young man to give up his chance for an education in order to take a job that he will be unhappy doing. After the first few months, he would probably be discontented and blame all the troubles that came his way on you.

To begin with he is certainly too young to take on the responsibility of a wife and family and while both of you may feel now that there will never be another person in your lives, it may be so and it may not!

At any rate, if you are both truly in love, you will stay that way, for a few years even though you are not married. On the other hand, if either of you realizes that you have grown apart and that your taste in your ideal of the other sex has changed, it will be much better to find it out before you are married than afterwards.

So many young people rush into hasty marriages before they realize what they are doing. They are physically attracted by some boy or girl and forget that this is only one of many things that have to be considered if a marriage is to be a happy one.

A boy of seventeen is too young to marry and the fact that this boy has to depend on himself to make a living makes it even more unwise.

Be glad that your friend has sense enough to know the value of an education.

LOUISA.

Dear Louisa: I have two children eight and ten and I always try to be at home when they come from school. I think it is bad for children to come home to an empty house.

My friends think I am silly because I refuse invitations that keep me away. What do you think?

MOTHER.

Answer:

I agree with you that a child feels greater security when they know mother will be home when they arrive and I think, as a general rule, it is better to be there.

However, when some unusual occasion arises, it may be well for you to explain why you have to be away. You may have a neighbor or a relative you can depend on, if they could help.

I think parents should take their responsibilities seriously but not make slaves of themselves.

LOUISA.

Dear Louisa,

My husband is a minister and although he wears a saintly look before his congregation, he is a mean, stingy, unchristian man. I never have a dollar to spend and he has tried to goad me into getting a divorce so that he can say I deserted him, but I am sticking it out on account of the children.

I am almost crazy.

Wife.

Answer:

There are none so vile as those who abuse their families and appear holy where they are in the public eye.

If you have to stay with him, try to make the best of it and have as little bickering as possible for your children's sake.

LOUISA.

MENTAL QUIRKS

Fighter Floors Louis But Loses Court Decision

BRANTFORD, Ont — (BUP)—Al Delaney, a fighter who once dropped Joe Louis with a right to the jaw, lost a decision here recently which surprised no one.

Since he failed to succeed as a heavyweight prize-ring boxer, back in the '30s, it followed that he would tumble too in his '50s role as a heist-man.

Al Delaney, 35, was sentenced to two years less a day for attempting a stick up. The only unusual feat of the court proceedings was that Al was on his feet at the finish.

He offered the defense that he was punch-drunk but sport-minds presumed the court remembered that Al was too cunning in the ring to have permitted himself to be seriously injured.

Delaney, whose real name is Alex Borchuk, was conceded by many to be a potential world champion had it not been for the unpredictable workings of his mind. He could fight when the mood was on.

It was while he was an amateur that he suddenly "got in the mood" and uncorked his right on Joe Louis' jaw. He wasn't in the mood for his final bout in 1934, his first year as a professional and Louis knocked him cold to start the long road to the championship.

Al almost single-handedly ruined the professional boxing business in England in 1937 when he fought Maurice Strickland in a bout advertised for the British Empire heavyweight championship.

About 10 seconds before the round bell rang, Delaney apparently decided he wasn't in the mood and went on to participate in the most boring fight in British ring history.

He proved, however, that Strickland also was a bum, since the toast of London's cauliflower row couldn't knock him out in 10 rounds even with Al offering no resistance.

His career reached its nadir in Toronto in 1941 when he was matched with Bob Pastor. Bothered again by the road-blocks on his mental highways, Al back-pedalled, clowned and fell in a dead faint the first time Pastor took a swing at him.

Montmorency Falls in Quebec has the highest fall in Canada, 274 feet, which is nearly double that of Niagara.

Canadian Liberty Secure Without Bill of Rights

Generally speaking, there is no need for a written bill of rights in Canada, according to Wilbur F. Bowker, dean of the faculty of law at the University of Alberta.

He said that freedoms provided by the Magna Carta were protected "reasonably well" by the safeguards of the criminal code, although certain aspects of espionage cases could "give us pause".

Bowker listed freedom of speech, religion and assembly as the second group of basic freedoms, and added that they were generally accepted, although religious freedom was reported denied in some sections of the country.

The equality of all before the law is also generally accepted, he declared.

Bowker stressed that basic human freedoms vary from time to time and often conflict. He said written laws guaranteeing freedoms existing in Britain were not passed as abstract principles, but o meet specific and practical conditions.

He added that written guarantees of civil liberties in the United States have given the courts of that country vast powers not enjoyed by Canadian courts. He said these guarantees have often made the American courts centres of controversy. However, he stated that Canadians could gain much by reading some of the judgments handed down by American courts.

Pioneer's Picture Presented To U. of A.

The last photograph taken of Hon. Frank Oliver, founder of The Edmonton Bulletin, has been presented to the University of Alberta by his daughter, Mrs. J. J. Anderson, 9924 106 St.

The large framed picture will be hung in the rare book room at the campus library.

Mr. Oliver was one of the pioneers of the west. He passed away in 1932.

He has a grandson, Frank Oliver, who is at present a student at the university.

Mr. Oliver served as minister of the interior in Sir Wilfred Laurier's cabinet, and after retiring from politics he served as a member of the board of railway commissioners, now the department of transport.

He received an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University in 1931.

Animals Vie For Kittens' Affections

STRATFORD, Ont.—(BUP)—If there's any jealousy in police constable Herman Roth's family it lies between a spaniel, a red fox and a cat for the affections of the cat's two kittens.

All three vie with one another to look after the furry mites, and Roth says tempers have worn thin but never been lost in the sharp competition.

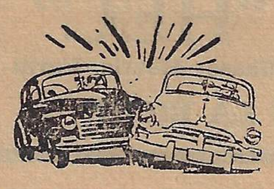

The kittens make their home in a large basket close to the kitchen stove. Most of the time the spaniel lies with them, growling at the fox and mother cat when either approaches.

The cat and fox have struck up a sort of "outsider's' gang-up against the spaniel and refuse to associate. They dash madly for the kittens' basket when the dog leaves.

Labor, Management Clash On 40-Hour-Week Plan

Labor representatives proposing a 40-hour, five-day week for Alberta Monday met solid opposition from management representatives at the second bi-annual labor-management conference here.

Object of the conference was to review the Alberta Labor Act and hear views of both industry and labor. Chairman was Dr. J. L. Robinson, Minister of Industry and Labor.

Labor representatives proposed a 40-hour week to replace the present 48-hour, six-day work week in the Alberta Labor Act. They said a shorter work week would increase production by providing needed leisure for employees.

Management representatives opposed the suggestion on grounds it would constitute Government interference in the field of collective bargaining.

They said Provincial and Federal Governments urged increased production for the defence emergency and this could be obtained only by longer working hours.

The management representatives also stated that shorter hours would add to the cost of living and that some workers on 40-hour weeks in Alberta take other jobs on their days off.

Dr. Robinson said the question was one the Government must now decide itself.

The LIGHTER SIDE

A Slight Misunderstanding

A Scotsman, on a visit to Canada noticed the mounted head of a bull moose hanging in the hall of the house where he was staying. He asked his host what sort of animal it was.

Host: "Oh, that's a moose."

Scotsman: "A moose! Eh, mon, what are your rats like over here?"

In a Daze

"How did the Smith wedding go off?"

"Fine, until the parson asked the bride if she'd obey her husband."

"What happened then?"

"She replied, 'Do you think I'm crazy.' and the groom who was in a sort of daze, replied, 'I do.'"

One Method

"Could you give me a recipe for cold tomato soup?"

"Well, one simple method is to be very late for dinner."

Proved

A man recently won a bet by entering a restaurant with a lion. He wished to prove that waiters could move quickly.

Couldn't Stump Him

The new minister always had a scripture quotation ready for any question asked him. One day a bug flew in his mouth and he swallowed it. A little boy stepped up and asked:

"Do you have a text from the scripture for that?"

"Yes," said the minister: "He was a stranger and I took him in."

Sized Up

"Little Girl, what will you do when you're as big as your mother."

"Diet."

Chemical Boom Seen Result Oil Discovery

Vast "imminent" developments involving $80,000,000 in Alberta's chemical industry were predicted by J. E. Oberholtzer, deputy minister of industries and labor for Alberta, in an address to the Canadian Chemical conference at the University of Manitoba.

"A number of current happenings have combined to bring about the decisions of various companies to extend chemical production in Aberta.

"The discovery and rapid development of the Alberta oil fields is the key item," the deputy minster said.

Some developments planned or underway, he said, were:

1. Development by the Canadian Salt Company to produce about 20 tons of chlorine a day and 24 tons of caustic soda.

2. The celanese Corporation of America's Canadian Chemical Company plant at Edmonton to produce cellulose acetate and various chemicals.

"The possibilities are great," Mr. Oberholtzer said. "In front of us we have petroleum refineries, two plants based on hydrocarbons, two on sulphur and one on salt."

Pretty Rites Unite Couple

AMISK.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's church, Hardisty, June 13 at 10 a.m. when Miss Jessie June Koener, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Koener of Lac la Biche became the bride of Mr. Louis Benoit Prost, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Prost of Amisk. Father Elkin of Hardisty performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by Mr. Dave Gibson of Amisk the bride was beautiful in a floor length white sheer gown featuring a nylon net yoke with a three-quarter length veil. To complete her ensemble the bride carried a lovely bouquet of pastel colored flowers of white roses, carnations and 'mums.

Miss Raymonde Prost, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and wore a pale yellow floor length nylon taffeta gown with a three-quater length halo veil and gloves to match. She carried a pastel colored bouquet of flowers.

Mrs. Prost chose a blue and white check jersey dress with a corsage of pink roses for her son's wedding.

Mr. Clement Prost, father of the groom, supported the groom.

Following the wedding ceremony 35 guests were received at a reception in the Nilrem school, which was nicely decorated for the occasion. The bride's table was centred with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake.

The young couple will make their home on the groom's farm, a few miles west of Amisk, after a motor trip to Redwater and Lac la Biche where they visited with relatives for several days.
